

Seats of Power

Ergonomics be damned—there's a new force in town | By Tiffany Jow |

Gone are the days when the Aeron Chair was the only answer to your workplace woes. Finally, power players have picked up on the importance of the hot seat, prompting executives of all kinds to use their desk chairs to symbolize their reign. After all, in this up-and-down market, it's going to be the risk-takers who win. So invest in one of these commanding, cutting-edge thrones encased in copper, silhouetted in neon or canopied in injection-mold plastic. That'll show them who's boss. ■

1. Electric Louis by Lee Broom, $5,950, at www.leebroom.com
2. Showtime Poltrona by Jamie Hayon, $10,534, at Minima, Philadelphia, www.minima.us
3. Regina Chair by Paolo Rizzatto for Poltrona Frau, $5,500, at Poltrona Frau, Georgetown, www.poltronafrau.com
4. Karuselli by Yrjö Kukkapuro for Avarte, $2,500, at Apartment Zero, Penn Quarter, www.apartmentzero.com
5. Clover Chair by Driade, $805, at Adlon, Georgetown, www.adlondesign.com
6. DS 2100 Chair by De Sede Design Team, $4,610, at Domus Design Collection, New York, www.ddnyc.com
7. Limited edition CU 29 by Tom Dixon, $40,000, at Moss, New York, www.mossonline.com